

Inside the Looking Glass: Watching the world with the Defense Intelligence Agency

October 21, 2013

by J.J. Green
WTOP

WASHINGTON - It's 9:51 a.m. on Aug. 23 at the Defense Intelligence Agency headquarters.

Army Lt. Gen. and DIA Director Michael T. Flynn surprises everyone in the room when he stands up and tells his staff, "Twenty minutes and I'll be back."

"Yes, sir -- got it," responds one of his aides.

With several staffers trailing him, Flynn then sets out with this reporter for a secret place that no journalist has ever seen.

"I want to show you a place, because it will give you an impression ... of our ability to watch the world," Flynn says.

...

Continue reading at WTOP.com

- Listen to audio segment one: A surprise journey
- Listen to audio segment two: The DIA's mission